Abstracts

A cam latch is a locking device that employs a lever and cam mechanism to quickly and efficiently secure and release objects. This device operates when the user manipulates the lever, which in turn moves the cam mechanism. This movement applies or releases tension through an arm, effectively securing or releasing the attached item. The lever's action on the cam ensures the object is held firmly in place or released as needed. Commonly found in applications such as securing truck beds, container doors, and agricultural machinery, cam latches are indispensable for scenarios that require frequent loading and unloading. They are composed of a lever, cam mechanism, arm, and latch, which together create a secure hold. Their simplicity of operation allows for quick locking and unlocking, often with just one hand, making them a reliable choice for ensuring items are securely fastened.

The global Cam Latch market size was estimated at USD 558.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.30% during the forecast period.
