The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on CHG IV Dressing competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. CHG IV dressing is a medical dressing containing chlorhexidine (CHG) used to secure intravenous cannulas and provide antimicrobial protection at the insertion site. It reduces the risk of cannula displacement and infection while maintaining breathability and visibility of the site. Typically made of sterile transparent film with a CHG coating, this dressing is widely used in hospitals and clinical care for safe management of intravenous infusions and injections. In 2024, global IV cannula dressing production reached approximately 66.07 million Pcs, with an average global market price of around US$1.12 per piece. This product typically has a single-line production capacity of approximately 3-5 million pieces per year, with an industry gross profit margin of approximately 35%-50%. Raw materials account for the largest portion of costs (65%), followed by labor and packaging. The upstream suppliers of this product are medical nonwovens, breathable films, and CHG, while the downstream suppliers are hospitals and clinical care institutions.
