Abstracts

Chinese Refreshing Ointment, known locally as 清凉油 (Qingliang You), is a traditional topical analgesic and cooling balm widely used in China and across Asia for its immediate soothing effects on headaches, dizziness, insect bites, minor burns, and muscle aches. Composed primarily of menthol, camphor, eucalyptus oil, and mint extracts, it functions through counter-irritation and vasodilation, providing a sensation of coolness that distracts from discomfort and offers temporary relief. Its compact, portable packaging—typically small metal or plastic tins—makes it convenient for personal carry and quick application, aligning with its reputation as a household staple and travel essential. While rooted in traditional Chinese medicine, its mechanism is understood in modern terms as a mild analgesic and antipruritic, often used as a first-aid remedy or to combat fatigue and motion sickness.

The global Chinese Refreshing Ointment market size was estimated at USD 320.5 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.75% during the forecast period.
