Abstracts

Chipped beef is a form of pressed, salted and dried beef that has been sliced into thin pieces. Some makers smoke the dried beef for more flavor. The modern product consists of small, thin, flexible leaves of partially dried beef, generally sold compressed together in jars or flat in plastic packets. The future market trends of chipped beef are influenced by the increasing demand for natural and antibiotic-free products, the rising consumption of protein-rich foods, and the changing consumer preferences for different cuts of meat. Some of the key challenges faced by the chipped beef industry are the disruptions in meat production and distribution due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the environmental and ethical concerns over animal welfare, and the competition from plant-based alternatives.

The global Chipped Beef market size was estimated at USD 5078.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.80% during the forecast period.
