Abstracts

Greenhouse environmental control system is an intelligent technology system that integrates sensors, controllers and actuators. It aims to create the most suitable conditions for plant growth by real-time monitoring and automatic adjustment of key environmental parameters such as temperature, humidity, light intensity, carbon dioxide concentration and ventilation in the greenhouse. The system uses advanced Internet of Things and automation technology to dynamically adjust the microclimate environment in the greenhouse according to the preset crop growth needs or external environmental changes, thereby optimizing the crop growth cycle, improving yield and quality, and reducing resource consumption (such as water, fertilizer and energy). For example, in the summer, the sunshade net and ventilation equipment are automatically activated to cool down when the temperature is high, and in the winter, the heating and supplementary lighting systems are used to maintain the appropriate temperature and light to ensure stable production throughout the year. Its core goal is to achieve efficient, intelligent and sustainable agricultural production through precise environmental management.

The global Clinical Communications Solution market size was estimated at USD 672.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 8.40% during the forecast period.
