Collection auction platforms are online or offline trading systems connecting collectors and buyers. They transfer ownership of collectibles through an open bidding mechanism and integrate value-added services such as appraisal, logistics, and finance, forming a digital ecosystem covering the entire transaction process. The industry's gross profit margin can reach 50-70%. The upstream sector is primarily composed of collectors, including individual collectors, museums, galleries, and artists. The quality of their collections directly influences trading activity. Midstream platforms require technical support capabilities, including bidding system development, blockchain evidence storage, and big data risk management, while also integrating third-party services such as logistics, insurance, and appraisal. Downstream buyer groups are diverse, with professional investors focusing on asset allocation and ordinary consumers focusing on collecting interests. Platforms must meet these diverse needs through precise recommendation algorithms.
