Abstracts

Contactless check-in refers to an intelligent accommodation service model that uses digital technology to enable guests to interact with no human interaction throughout the entire process, from booking, identity verification, check-in, door opening, and check-out. This model primarily relies on mobile applications, self-service check-in terminals, smart door locks, facial recognition, and cloud-based management systems. It aims to improve efficiency, protect privacy, and ensure hygiene and safety. It has become a key development direction for mid- to high-end hotel chains and smart hotels, particularly in the post-pandemic era. Its upstream components include suppliers of smart hardware (such as kiosks, door locks, and cameras), SaaS software systems (PMS and CRM), identity authentication technology (public security network, facial recognition algorithms), and communication modules. The midstream comprises hotel brand operators and smart hotel solution integrators, responsible for system deployment and service integration. The downstream component serves consumers and hotel management groups. Within the industry chain, SaaS software and system integration offer higher gross profit margins (reaching 60%?80%), while smart hardware manufacturing boasts relatively lower margins (approximately 20%?35%). Overall profitability relies on scaled deployment and operational efficiency. Leading companies are building competitive advantages through an integrated "hardware + software + service" model, driving the industry's evolution towards full-scenario intelligence and data-driven operations. The contactless check-in hotel market is experiencing significant growth due to the COVID-19 pandemic and consumer preference for contactless options. With the help of mobile apps, guests can complete the check-in process without interacting with hotel staff. Many hotels are adopting this technology to provide guests with a more seamless and contactless experience. The hotel installs a self-service kiosk in the lobby, and guests can check in and collect room keys by themselves. The technology is also used to reduce waiting times and improve service levels. Many hotels are combining contactless check-in technology with loyalty programs to provide guests with a more personalized experience. Overall, the contactless check-in hotel market is rapidly evolving with the development of new technologies, tools, and strategies to provide a safer and more seamless experience for guests while creating value for the hospitality industry.

The global Contactless Check-in Hotel market size was estimated at USD 662.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 5.40% during the forecast period.
