Abstracts

Contract plasma coating, also known as atmospheric plasma spraying (APS), is a thermal spray process in which a high-temperature plasma jet is used to melt and propel fine powder materials onto a prepared substrate surface, where they rapidly solidify to form a dense, adherent coating that enhances properties such as wear resistance, thermal insulation, corrosion protection, or electrical conductivity. This technique is widely utilized across industries including aerospace, automotive, energy, and medical devices to extend component lifespan, improve performance under extreme conditions, and reduce maintenance costs, with contract services provided by specialized firms that offer custom coating solutions without requiring clients to invest in expensive in-house equipment or expertise.

The global Contract Plasma Coating market size was estimated at USD 95.5 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 7.25% during the forecast period.
