Abstracts

Denture fixative cream, also known as denture adhesive, is a topical product applied to the surface of dentures to enhance stability, improve retention, and prevent slippage during speaking, chewing, or other oral activities; it typically consists of safe, non-toxic polymers (such as carboxymethylcellulose or synthetic adhesives) that create a seal between the denture and the oral mucosa, offering users increased comfort and confidence while reducing the risk of irritation or soft tissue damage caused by ill-fitting prosthetics. The global market for denture fixative cream is characterized by steady demand driven by an aging population, rising prevalence of edentulism (tooth loss), and growing awareness of oral health and prosthetic care, with key players focusing on innovation in formulation?such as zinc-free options for long-term safety, added flavors for improved user experience, and advanced seal technologies for all-day hold?while distribution spans pharmacies, online retailers, and supermarkets to cater to both elderly consumers and younger demographic segments seeking temporary or permanent dental solutions.

The global Denture Fixative Cream market size was estimated at USD 650.0 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.50% during the forecast period.
