Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Diffuser Film Coating Machine competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. In 2024, the global production of diffusion film coating machines reached approximately 1,200 units, with an average global market price of around 180 thousand US dollars per unit. A diffusion film coating machine is a precision equipment specifically designed to apply a light-diffusing layer on the surface of optical substrates. By precisely controlling the coating process, it forms functional optical films on substrates such as PET and PC that can convert point light sources or line light sources into uniform surface light sources. It is mainly used in fields such as display backlight modules and LED lighting panels, effectively improving light uniformity and luminous efficiency. Upstream includes optical-grade PET/PC base films, diffusion particles (PMMA, silica, resin micro-spheres), UV/thermal curing resins, precision coating heads, drying ovens, and tension control systems. Midstream consists of coating equipment manufacturers such as Toray Engineering, Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, Boyu, and multiple Chinese optical film equipment suppliers. Downstream applications include LCD/LED displays, tablets, TVs, laptops, automotive screens, and lighting diffusion panels. End customers focus on haze stability, uniform particle dispersion, micron-level coating precision, defect control (
