Abstracts

A Double Shield Hard Rock Tunnel Boring Machine (TBM) is a highly specialized piece of heavy engineering equipment designed for excavating tunnels through challenging geological conditions, such as hard rock formations, while simultaneously installing precast concrete segments to form the tunnel lining. Distinguished by its dual-shield design comprising a rotating cutting head equipped with disc cutters for rock fragmentation, a forward shield for ground support, and a telescopic shield that allows continuous thrust during segment erection, this type of TBM enables efficient, continuous tunneling with minimal ground disturbance. It is engineered to operate under high rock pressures and variable ground conditions, integrating functions like muck removal via conveyor systems, real-time ground conditioning, and automated segment placement, making it ideal for long, deep tunnels in infrastructure projects such as railways, hydropower systems, and road networks where both safety and precision are critical.

The global Double Shield Hard Rock Tbm market size was estimated at USD 1200.0 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.50% during the forecast period.
