Abstracts

Expert witnesses are key in the courtroom, as more complicated disputes need clear explanation to a jury. An expert witness can provide the court with a statement of opinion on any admissible matter calling for expertise by the witness if they are qualified to give such an opinion. Experienced professionals who can provide independent and objective testimony for even the most complex or challenging case. With the development of the global economy and the continuous improvement of the legal system, various legal disputes are becoming increasingly complex, and the demand for professional expert witness services continues to increase. In the business field, there are complex cases involving intellectual property, financial securities, antitrust, etc.; in the medical field, disputes such as medical accidents and drug patents; in the environmental field, disputes such as environmental pollution and ecological damage all require expert witnesses in related fields to provide professional opinions and evidence to help the court hear cases more accurately. The services cover multiple fields, including but not limited to medicine, law, engineering, accounting, environmental science, information technology, etc. Medical expert witnesses can provide opinions on the causal relationship of medical accidents, disability appraisal, etc.; legal experts can explain the interpretation of legal provisions, case analysis, etc.; engineering experts can give professional judgments on issues such as building quality and product design defects. Changes in litigation trends, including emerging legal issues and regulatory changes, can drive demand for expert witnesses in specific areas. As legal cases become more intricate and technical, the need for experts who can provide specialized insights becomes more pronounced. Industries experiencing growth, such as technology and healthcare, may see increased demand for expert witnesses in related disputes.

The global Expert Witness Services market size was estimated at USD 713.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 6.40% during the forecast period.
