Abstracts

Feller bunching heads are specialized hydraulic attachments mounted on heavy forestry machinery, such as harvesters or feller bunchers, designed to efficiently cut, gather, and process multiple trees simultaneously. These attachments integrate cutting mechanisms?typically high-strength shears or saws?with accumulating arms or grapples, allowing operators to fell, hold, and stack trees in bunches before delimbing or forwarding. Engineered for durability in rugged environments, they improve productivity in large-scale logging operations by reducing cycle times, minimizing operator effort, and enhancing safety by limiting repetitive manual tasks. Their design prioritizes compatibility with various carrier machines and tree sizes, making them essential in modern mechanized forestry for clear-cutting, thinning, or selective harvesting operations.

The global Feller Bunching Heads market size was estimated at USD 450.0 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.50% during the forecast period.
