Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Flavored Disposable E-Cigarette competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations.Flavored disposable e-cigarette is a single-use electronic nicotine delivery device pre-filled with a flavored e-liquid—commonly including fruit, mint, candy, or beverage profiles—and equipped with a pre-charged battery. It is designed for immediate use without recharging or refilling, offering a convenient, low-maintenance option for consumers. Once the e-liquid or battery is depleted, the entire device is discarded. These products are typically compact, attractively packaged, and marketed for their portability and diverse flavor options.Flavored disposable e-cigarettes have surged in popularity as convenient, entry-level products, with key consumption markets including the United States, the United Kingdom, and Southeast Asia’s urban centers. Their single-use format and wide flavor variety drive frequent repeat purchases, making online vape retailers (direct-to-consumer websites and major e-commerce platforms) and convenience stores/gas stations the leading sales channels.

The global Flavored Disposable E-Cigarette market size was estimated at USD 15000.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 11.00% during the forecast period.
