Abstracts

Game Community Management Service is a professional service designed to systematically build, maintain, and revitalize player communities for game developers and publishers. Its core tasks encompass daily operations across multiple platforms, content planning, organizing interactive events, and user support to enhance player engagement and satisfaction. At a deeper level, the service provider transforms the community into a valuable opinion pool through public opinion monitoring, feedback collection, and data analysis. This provides a basis for decision-making regarding game version iterations and market strategy optimization, effectively manages crisis communication, maintains the game's brand reputation, and ultimately drives player growth and long-term retention. Game Community Management Service exhibits significant regional differences globally. The North American and European markets are the most mature, generally viewing communities as core strategic assets, with highly professional and systematic services and extensive use of AI and data analytics tools. In the Asia-Pacific region, particularly in China, Japan, and South Korea, the prevalence of mobile gaming culture has led to close integration of community operations with esports events, live-streaming e-commerce, and IP-derived ecosystems, resulting in direct and highly active monetization paths. In emerging markets such as Southeast Asia and Latin America, services focus more on user growth and localized communication through social media. Overall, the service is shifting from basic customer service and content distribution to global, data-driven user loyalty and lifecycle management.

The global Game Community Management Service market size was estimated at USD 125.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 5.70% during the forecast period.
