Abstracts

Game LiveOps service is a data-driven approach to ongoing game management post-launch, focused on actively optimizing player engagement, retention, and revenue. It involves the strategic deployment of time-sensitive in-game events, new content, promotions, and balance adjustments without requiring a full client update. Core activities include A/B testing for feature optimization, real-time monitoring of key metrics, and managing reward economies. The ultimate goal is to maintain a dynamic and fresh game experience, prolong the product's lifecycle, and maximize its long-term commercial value by responding agilely to player behavior and market trends. Game LiveOps services exhibit significant regional development characteristics globally. In mature markets like North America and Europe, LiveOps has become a standard feature of game operations, heavily reliant on data-driven strategies and A/B testing, with a focus on long-term user retention and maximizing lifetime value. East Asian markets (such as China, Japan, and South Korea) have pushed LiveOps to its extreme, characterized by extremely frequent event updates, strong monetization incentives, and deep integration with popular local IPs and holidays, resulting in complex gameplay and a very fast operational pace. In emerging markets like Southeast Asia and Latin America, LiveOps focuses more on achieving rapid user growth and habit formation through lightweight social sharing and login rewards.

The global Game LiveOps Service market size was estimated at USD 75.32 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 7.40% during the forecast period.
