Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on GHS Label competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. GHS Label (Globally Harmonized System of Classification and Labelling of Chemicals Label) is a standardized hazard communication tool used on chemical products to convey critical safety information in a globally consistent format. It includes pictograms, signal words, hazard statements, precautionary statements, and product identifiers, as required by the United Nations' GHS framework. Designed to replace fragmented national/regional labeling systems, the GHS label ensures that workers, consumers, and emergency responders can quickly identify chemical hazards (e.g., flammability, toxicity, environmental risks) and take appropriate protective measures, enhancing workplace safety, regulatory compliance, and international trade efficiency.

The global GHS Label market size was estimated at USD 1668.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 3.40% during the forecast period.
