Abstracts

The market for gold-infused skincare encompasses a niche segment within the premium and luxury beauty industry, featuring products such as serums, creams, masks, and facial mists that incorporate colloidal gold, gold flakes, or gold nanoparticles into their formulations. These products are marketed primarily for their purported anti-inflammatory, antioxidant, and anti-aging benefits, leveraging gold's historical and cultural associations with luxury, purity, and rejuvenation. Targeting high-income consumers seeking exclusivity and visible results, gold-infused skincare is often positioned at the ultra-premium price point, distributed through high-end department stores, specialty beauty retailers, luxury spas, and e-commerce platforms.
