Report Overview

A gooseneck hitch is a type of trailer hitch that is designed to be used with gooseneck trailers. Gooseneck trailers are typically used to tow heavy loads, such as boat trailers, livestock trailers, and fifth wheel trailers.

Gooseneck hitches are different from other types of trailer hitches in that they have a gooseneck ball that is mounted on a platform that is attached to the truck bed. The gooseneck ball is located behind the truck cab, which allows for a longer trailer tongue. This longer tongue provides more stability when towing heavy loads.

Gooseneck hitches are also different from other types of trailer hitches in that they require a special type of trailer. Gooseneck trailers have a gooseneck coupler that is designed to fit into the gooseneck ball on the truck. The gooseneck coupler is located at the front of the trailer tongue.
