Report Overview:

Water can comprise as much as 90% of juice. When most of this liquid is removed, the result is a thick, syrupy product known as juice concentrate. Extracting the water reduces bacterial growth, meaning that concentrate doesn't spoil as easily as juice. This process likewise cuts packaging, storage, and transportation costs. Still, processing methods differ. Most concentrates are filtered, evaporated, and pasteurized, but some may also include additives.
