Abstracts

Hair Removal Waxing Product is a cosmetic product used to remove excess hair from the skin's surface. This method of epilation is a process that involves applying warm wax onto an area with unwanted hair and then quickly removing it from the opposite direction as the hair growth, taking away not just hairs but also tiny skin cells, which can result in smoother skin after repeatedly waxing over time. The classification of hair removal waxing products includes frozen wax and hot wax, the main components of frozen wax are various resins, which are highly adhesive, soluble in water and in a gelatinous state. It does not need to be heated when used and can be directly applied to the skin where the hair is to be removed. Frozen wax for hair removal is easy to use, but the cost is relatively high. Hot wax is less expensive, and the used wax can be reused after being disinfected, heated and filtered to remove the hair. Due to the increased personal grooming awareness, growing awareness about personal hygiene and grooming has driven demand of hair removal waxing products, particularly among women, but with increasing male adoption as well. Reckitt Benckiser (Veet), Darent Wax, Xanitalia, Nads Corporation, Edgewell Personal Care, etc. are the leaders in the industry. The market is expected to continue its upward trajectory due to evolving consumer preferences for DIY grooming solutions and growing awareness in regions like Asia-Pacific. However, competition with other hair removal methods, such as laser treatments, remains a factor that could influence growth rates.

The global Hair Removal Waxing Products market size was estimated at USD 870.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.60% during the forecast period.
