Abstracts

High-density polyethylene (HDPE) steel pipe coating refers to a protective layer applied externally to steel pipes to enhance their durability, corrosion resistance, and longevity in demanding environments, such as oil and gas transportation, water supply systems, and chemical processing industries. This coating process typically involves extruding a thick, seamless layer of HDPE over the steel substrate, often combined with adhesive layers to ensure strong bonding and prevent disbondment; the result is a composite pipe that leverages the mechanical strength of steel with the chemical inertness, abrasion resistance, and flexibility of HDPE, making it suitable for both buried and submerged applications where protection against soil stress, moisture, and corrosive agents is critical.

The global Hdpe Steel Pipe Coating market size was estimated at USD 2480.5 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.85% during the forecast period.
