Abstracts

A Hinged Patio Door, also known as a French door when configured in pairs, is a type of exterior door that swings open on side-mounted hinges, similar to a traditional entry door. Typically installed to provide access to patios, decks, or gardens, these doors can open inward or outward depending on the architectural design and user preference. Hinged patio doors often feature large glass panels that allow natural light to flow into the interior space while offering unobstructed views of the outdoors. They are commonly made from materials such as wood, fiberglass, aluminum, or vinyl, often with multi-point locking systems to enhance security and energy efficiency. In addition to aesthetic appeal, hinged patio doors provide a tight seal when closed, helping to maintain indoor climate control. These doors are ideal for both traditional and modern homes, offering timeless elegance, ease of use, and the potential for wide openings when double doors are used. Their durability, visual openness, and functional versatility make them a popular choice for residential and light commercial architecture.

The global Hinged Patio Door market size was estimated at USD 652.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 3.30% during the forecast period.
