Abstracts

A horizontal chaff cutter is a mechanized agricultural implement designed for chopping fodder crops such as green grass, maize, sorghum, or straw into uniform pieces to improve digestibility and storage efficiency for livestock feed. It operates with a horizontally oriented cutting mechanism—typically a rotating drum fitted with blades—that processes material fed into it, distinguishing it from vertical chaff cutters where the cutting mechanism is oriented vertically. These machines vary in size and capacity, from small, tractor-powered or electric models for small farms to large, high-capacity units for commercial dairy or livestock operations. Key features often include adjustable cutting lengths, robust construction for durability, and safety mechanisms to protect operators during use.

The global Horizontal Chaff Cutter market size was estimated at USD 525.0 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.50% during the forecast period.
