Abstracts

Horoscope and astrology apps are the product of the combination of modern technology and astrology, aiming to provide users with personalized analysis and prediction services based on horoscopes and astrology. Horoscope apps predict and analyze the fortune of a horoscope in a specific time period (such as daily, weekly, monthly or annually) based on the horoscope of the user's birth date (solar calendar). These apps usually provide fortune predictions in many aspects including love, career, wealth, health, etc. Astrology apps are more in-depth and complex. They not only focus on horoscopes, but also involve professional concepts in astrology such as planets, houses, and phases. By analyzing the impact of these celestial movements on human life, users can be provided with more detailed and personalized astrological services. The younger generation is growing in interest. Generation Z and millennials have a strong interest in mysticism and astrology culture, and the spread of social media has accelerated this trend. Astrology content has become social currency, such as the popularity of the "Mercury retrograde" meme. Rising demand for mental health. In the post-epidemic era, people are more concerned about self-cognition and emotional management, and astrology is used as a self-exploration tool rather than just entertainment. The growth of smartphone users around the world has made it easier for astrology apps to reach potential users, especially in emerging markets (such as India and Southeast Asia). Big data analysis allows astrology apps to more accurately predict user behavior (such as love and career choices) and increase credibility. Many Internet celebrities and stars publicly discuss astrology, driving fans to use related apps.

The global Horoscope and Astrology Apps market size was estimated at USD 1053.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 11.30% during the forecast period.
