Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Hotel Self Check-in Kiosk competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. Hotel self-service check-in kiosks are intelligent terminal devices integrating identity recognition (such as ID card/passport scanning), facial recognition, payment systems, room key issuance, and information interaction functions. They allow guests to complete the entire check-in process—including registration, room selection, payment, and card retrieval—without human intervention at the front desk. They are widely used in mid-to-high-end hotels, chain hotels, and smart tourism scenarios. The upstream of the industry chain includes hardware suppliers (such as touchscreens, card readers, cameras, printers, and main control chips) and software service providers (operating systems, AI algorithms, and PMS integration platforms); the midstream consists of self-service terminal manufacturers and system integrators, responsible for software and hardware integration and customized development; the downstream mainly serves hotel groups, independent hotel owners, and hotel management companies. In 2024, the global production of hotel self-service check-in kiosks was approximately 150,769 units, with a global average market price of approximately US$6,500 per unit. The gross profit margin of major companies in the industry ranges from 32% to 48%. Single-line production capacity is 25,000 to 55,000 units per year. The hotel self check-in kiosk market is growing rapidly as hotels seek to digitalize operations and reduce labor dependency. The expansion of contactless services, accelerated by technological adoption and guest preferences for convenience, is further supporting demand. Kiosks that integrate biometric verification, cloud-based management, and multilingual interfaces are becoming increasingly competitive. Budget and mid-range hotels are major adopters as they aim to streamline processes and reduce staffing costs. Additionally, smart hotel ecosystems and IoT integration are helping enhance guest experience and operational data visibility. Overall, the market is expected to maintain strong momentum as automation and self-service become standard features in global hospitality.

The global Hotel Self Check-in Kiosk market size was estimated at USD 980.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 7.10% during the forecast period.
