Abstracts

Import-export insurance, also referred to as cargo or marine insurance, is a specialized form of coverage designed to protect goods in transit against a range of risks, including damage, theft, loss, and delays caused by perils such as adverse weather, accidents, piracy, or political instability, with policies often tailored to cover specific modes of transport?sea, air, rail, or road?and varying terms based on the Incoterms agreed upon between buyers and sellers. This insurance is essential for mitigating financial risks in international trade, ensuring that businesses can recover the value of shipments should unforeseen events disrupt the supply chain, and it typically involves key stakeholders such as exporters, importers, freight forwarders, and insurers who assess factors like cargo type, route, and declared value to determine premiums and coverage limits.

The global Import Export Insurance market size was estimated at USD 2018.75 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 5.42% during the forecast period.

This report offers a comprehensive and in-depth analysis of the global Import Export Insurance market, covering all critical facets from a broad macroeconomic overview to detailed micro-level insights. It examines market size, competitive landscape, emerging development trends, niche segments, key drivers and challenges, as well as conducts SWOT and value chain analyses.

The insights provided enable readers to understand the competitive dynamics within the industry and formulate effective strategies to enhance profitability and market positioning. Additionally, the report presents a clear framework for evaluating the current status and future outlook of business organizations operating in this sector.

A significant focus of this report lies in the competitive landscape of the global Import Export Insurance market. It offers detailed profiles of major players, including their market shares, performance metrics, product portfolios, and operational status. This enables stakeholders to identify leading competitors and gain a nuanced understanding of market rivalry and structure.
