Abstracts

Incentive Consulting is a professional psychological and behavioral intervention service designed to help individuals or organizations activate intrinsic motivation, clarify goals, and overcome obstacles to action through systematic guidance, support, and strategic approaches, ultimately achieving positive personal growth or improved organizational performance. Its core approach goes beyond simply instilling motivation. Instead, through in-depth communication and professional assessment, it helps clients discover their values, strengths, and deepest desires, transforming vague aspirations into a clear, actionable goal system. The consultation process combines psychological principles (such as Self-Determination Theory and Goal-Setting Theory) with coaching techniques, utilizing tools such as questioning, reflection, challenge-setting, and action planning to help clients identify and overcome limiting beliefs and build confidence and a sense of responsibility. Services typically include goal clarification, motivation analysis, obstacle coping strategies, habit cultivation, and the establishment of ongoing accountability mechanisms. It is applicable to a variety of areas, including personal life planning, career development, health management, and team leadership development. The ultimate goal of motivational consulting is to empower clients to develop sustainable methods of self-motivation, enabling them to maintain momentum and achieve lasting change beyond the consulting relationship.
