The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Layered Cleansing Foam competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. In 2024, the global production of layered cleansing foam will reach 46.06 million units, with an average selling price of US$15 per unit. Layered cleansing foam is an innovative cleansing product that typically contains multiple layers of foamy liquid with different textures or ingredients. Shaken or pumped in layers, it delivers multiple benefits, including basic cleansing, gentle conditioning, and moisturizing and repairing. This enhances the fun and visual differentiation of cleansing while meeting the cleansing needs of various skin types and scenarios. The upstream supply chain for layered cleansing foam primarily includes suppliers of raw materials such as surfactants, moisturizing and repairing ingredients (such as hyaluronic acid and essential oils), foam stabilizers, fragrances, and pigments, as well as manufacturers of packaging materials such as plastic bottles, pump heads, and separators. These upstream links determine the foam's texture, layered stability, and skincare efficacy, and are key to product differentiation and cost control.

The global Layered Cleansing Foam market size was estimated at USD 691.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 9.10% during the forecast period.
