Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Lignin Binder competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. Lignin binder is an environmentally friendly adhesive made from lignin, a byproduct of the papermaking industry, through chemical modification (such as sulfonation and phenolization) to replace traditional formaldehyde-based resins (such as urea-formaldehyde glue). Its core advantages are renewability, low toxicity (VOCs emissions are reduced by more than 50%) and biodegradability. It is suitable for areas such as artificial boards, packaging materials and building molding. The technical difficulty lies in improving the bonding strength (currently 1.5-2.0MPa) and water resistance (water absorption rate
