Abstracts

Logistics pallet is a fundamental device used in logistics transportation and warehousing. It's typically a flat - surfaced platform with a certain load - bearing capacity, usually square - shaped. Pallets are mainly made of materials such as wood, plastic, or metal. It serves to group and organize goods, facilitating the loading, unloading, handling, stacking, and storage of goods. For example, during the loading and unloading of goods, forklifts can easily lift and move the goods as a whole by inserting the forks into the pallet's fork - entry holes, significantly improving the handling efficiency. In the warehousing stage, pallets allow goods to be stacked, making efficient use of warehouse space while ensuring the stability and safety of the goods, keeping the goods intact and easy to manage during the circulation process and is an indispensable part of the modern logistics system.
