Abstracts

Long Term Care Insurance (LTCI) is a specialized insurance product designed to cover the costs associated with long-term care services, which are not typically covered by traditional health insurance, Medicare, or Medicaid. It provides financial protection for policyholders who require assistance with activities of daily living?such as bathing, dressing, eating, or mobility?due to chronic illness, disability, or cognitive impairment like Alzheimer?s disease. Policies generally cover expenses for care received in various settings, including nursing homes, assisted living facilities, adult day care centers, and even in the policyholder?s own home through professional home health care services. Coverage often includes both skilled and custodial care, with benefits triggered when the insured meets specific criteria demonstrating functional or cognitive impairment. Premiums are typically paid on an ongoing basis, and policies may include features such as inflation protection, elimination (waiting) periods, and maximum benefit periods or lifetime limits, making LTCI a critical component of retirement and health financial planning for aging populations.

The global Long Term Care Insurance market size was estimated at USD 142.5 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 5.50% during the forecast period.
