Abstracts

Low cut skateboard shoes are a specialized category of footwear designed specifically for skateboarding, characterized by their minimalist ankle height, flexible yet durable construction, and performance-focused features such as reinforced ollie pads, grippy vulcanized or cupsole outsoles for board feel, padded collars and tongues for impact absorption, and suede or abrasion-resistant uppers to withstand the rigors of deck grip tape and repeated friction; these shoes prioritize functionality, mobility, and durability over fashion-driven aesthetics, though style remains an important secondary consideration within skate culture and streetwear markets.
