Maropitant Citrate Injectable Solution is a veterinary prescription medication commonly used in dogs and cats for the prevention and treatment of vomiting caused by various conditions, including motion sickness, gastroenteritis, and chemotherapy-induced nausea. Its active ingredient, maropitant, is a highly selective neurokinin-1 (NK1) receptor antagonist that works by inhibiting the action of substance P—a key neurotransmitter involved in the vomiting reflex—both in the central and peripheral nervous systems. The injectable formulation is typically administered subcutaneously or intravenously, making it ideal for animals unable to take oral medications or in need of rapid symptom control. Known for its rapid onset and long duration of action (up to 24 hours), it is a widely used antiemetic in small animal practice. A leading commercial product is Cerenia®, manufactured by Zoetis.
