Abstracts

Mobile Diagnostic Imaging Service refers to a medical service that utilizes mobile medical imaging equipment to provide diagnostic imaging examinations at various locations. It can bring high - quality diagnostic imaging services to patients' doorsteps, including X - ray, ultrasound, CT, MRI and other examination items. It can provide on - site examination services according to the needs of patients, such as in patients' homes, nursing homes, rehabilitation centers and other places, especially for patients who have difficulties in moving, which can reduce their pain and inconvenience of going out. Mobile diagnostic imaging equipment can be flexibly deployed to different areas, so that medical resources can be shared more effectively, especially in some areas with scarce medical resources, it can improve the availability of diagnostic imaging services.The global mobile diagnostic imaging service market is characterized by stable growth, diverse driving factors, and a competitive landscape. North America and Europe have relatively mature markets. The Asia - Pacific region is the fastest - growing area, driven by factors such as the large population base, continuous improvement of medical infrastructure, and increasing demand for high - quality medical services. The global aging population is increasing, and older adults are more prone to chronic diseases that require continuous monitoring through diagnostic imaging. Mobile imaging services provide a convenient way for elderly patients to receive care without frequent hospital visits. As people's demand for convenient medical services grows, mobile imaging services can provide on - site diagnostic imaging services for patients who have difficulties in moving or lack access to traditional imaging facilities, especially in remote or underserved areas.

The global Mobile Diagnostic Imaging Service market size was estimated at USD 29730.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 9.30% during the forecast period.
