Abstracts

Multi-manager investment, also known as a multi-manager approach or multi-manager fund, is an investment strategy where a single investment vehicle, such as a mutual fund, exchange-traded fund (ETF), or separately managed account, allocates capital to multiple external professional asset managers or sub-advisors, each specializing in distinct asset classes, investment styles, or geographic regions, rather than relying on a single internal management team, thereby aiming to diversify investment expertise, mitigate individual manager risk, and enhance risk-adjusted returns through a structured and often dynamic manager selection and oversight process. This market has experienced significant growth driven by institutional and high-net-worth investor demand for sophisticated diversification, access to specialized talent, and the potential for more consistent performance in volatile markets, while facing challenges such as higher fee structures due to layered management costs, complexity in oversight and due diligence, and the ongoing need to demonstrate value-added beyond what investors could achieve through simpler, lower-cost passive or single-manager alternatives. Key trends include the expansion into liquid alternatives and private markets, increased use of data analytics for manager selection, growing emphasis on environmental, social, and governance (ESG) integration across manager mandates, and competition from model portfolios and direct indexing solutions that offer customization at scale.

The global Multi Manager Investment market size was estimated at USD 4782.5 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 7.25% during the forecast period.

This report offers a comprehensive and in-depth analysis of the global Multi Manager Investment market, covering all critical facets from a broad macroeconomic overview to
