Abstracts

Muscle Massage Foam Roller is a cylindrical, foam-based tool used for self-myofascial release (SMR), which is a technique to relieve muscle tightness, soreness, and improve flexibility. Typically made from high-density foam, these rollers come in various sizes, densities, and textures to suit different muscle groups and pressure preferences. The foam roller is commonly used by athletes, physical therapists, and fitness enthusiasts as part of a warm-up, cool-down, or rehabilitation routine. The foam roller works by applying pressure to specific muscle groups, helping to break down adhesions, knots, and tension within the fascia (the connective tissue surrounding muscles). By rolling the foam roller over areas of discomfort or stiffness, users can enhance blood circulation, reduce muscle soreness after exercise, and improve range of motion. It is often used for areas such as the back, calves, hamstrings, quads, and IT band.

The global Muscle Massage Foam Roller market size was estimated at USD 427.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 3.40% during the forecast period.
