Abstracts

Mutual life insurance is usually operated by organizations composed of people with common needs or connections. These organizations can be industry associations, trade unions, community groups, etc. Members pay premiums according to certain rules to form a mutual aid fund. When a member encounters an insurance accident stipulated in the insurance contract, such as death, disability, major illness, etc., the mutual aid fund will provide financial compensation to the member or its beneficiary in accordance with the agreement. Different from traditional commercial life insurance, mutual life insurance emphasizes the spirit of mutual assistance among members, and does not take profit as its main purpose. Operating surplus is usually returned to members in the form of dividends, etc., or used to enhance the protection capacity and service level of the mutual aid organization.

The global Mutual Life Insurance market size was estimated at USD 7135.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.30% during the forecast period.

This report offers a comprehensive and in-depth analysis of the global Mutual Life Insurance market, covering all critical facets from a broad macroeconomic overview to detailed micro-level insights. It examines market size, competitive landscape, emerging development trends, niche segments, key drivers and challenges, as well as conducts SWOT and value chain analyses.

The insights provided enable readers to understand the competitive dynamics within the industry and formulate effective strategies to enhance profitability and market positioning. Additionally, the report presents a clear framework for evaluating the current status and future outlook of business organizations operating in this sector.

A significant focus of this report lies in the competitive landscape of the global Mutual Life Insurance market. It offers detailed profiles of major players, including their market shares, performance metrics, product portfolios, and operational status.
