Abstracts

Non corrosive sealant refers to a specialized class of adhesives and sealants formulated to prevent chemical reactions with the surfaces they contact, particularly metals like aluminum, copper, and stainless steel, thereby eliminating risks of galvanic corrosion, oxidation, or material degradation. These products are typically silicone-based, polyurethane-based, or modified polymer formulations that remain chemically inert, resistant to moisture, UV exposure, and environmental stressors, while maintaining strong adhesion and flexibility. They are engineered for applications where material compatibility is critical, such as in construction (window glazing, expansion joints), automotive manufacturing (body sealing, gaskets), marine environments (boat hulls, deck fittings), and electronics (encapsulation, potting), ensuring long-term performance without compromising structural integrity or appearance.

The global Non Corrosive Sealant market size was estimated at USD 4200.5 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.75% during the forecast period.
