Non-linear TV services, also known as video-on-demand (VOD) or over-the-top (OTT) media services, refer to digital platforms that deliver television content to viewers without adhering to a fixed broadcast schedule, allowing users to access programs, movies, and other media at their convenience through internet-connected devices such as smart TVs, smartphones, tablets, and computers. These services have evolved beyond traditional linear broadcasting by offering personalized, on-demand viewing experiences, often through subscription-based models (e.g., Netflix, Disney+), advertising-supported free tiers (e.g., YouTube, Pluto TV), or transactional rentals (e.g., Amazon Prime Video), and they increasingly incorporate features like algorithm-driven recommendations, multi-device synchronization, and original content production to enhance user engagement and retention.
