Abstracts

On-site security services refer to the professional on-site security and patrol services provided by security companies at clients' physical locations (such as parks, buildings, construction sites, exhibitions, and stores). These services include access control, security checks, patrols, incident response, night shifts, visitor management, and emergency response. Its "productized" parameters typically include: service hours (24/7, working hours), staffing (number of posts, shifts, levels and qualifications), response SLA (arrival/response time limit), patrol frequency and routes, technology integration (video surveillance, access control, intercom, alarm linkage, mobile enforcement APP), reporting system (daily/weekly reports, incident logs), compliance certification (certified personnel, background checks), and insurance coverage. It addresses the pain points of "lack of oversight, untimely response, and difficulty in maintaining access control and order" in complex, open, or high-traffic environments for businesses. Through quantifiable personnel and processes, it improves on-site visibility, deterrence, and response efficiency.The upstream sector includes human resource recruitment and training, uniforms and PPE, and monitoring and access control equipment and platform software (access controllers, cameras, alarm hosts, mobile law enforcement apps); the midstream sector involves security companies' scheduling and SLA operations, on-site process standardization and technology integration (electronic patrols, video linkage, incident work orders); the downstream sector covers commercial parks, retail, industrial, medical, educational, and cultural heritage venues, demanding quantifiable responses, auditable records, and visualized on-site control. Future driving factors include strengthening compliance and risk governance, professional segmentation of event and cultural heritage scenarios, and the penetration of human-technology combined defense and data-driven operations, promoting an upgrade from a "human-based" to a hybrid model of "human defense + technology defense + platform".
