The global open cloud services market is experiencing rapid growth, driven by increasing demand for scalable, cost-effective, and flexible cloud solutions across industries. Open cloud services, which are built on open-source technologies and standards, enable interoperability, avoid vendor lock-in, and promote innovation through collaborative development. Organizations are increasingly adopting these services to leverage hybrid and multi-cloud environments, enhance data portability, and reduce dependency on proprietary cloud providers. Key sectors fueling demand include IT & telecom, healthcare, BFSI, and retail, with enterprises prioritizing security, compliance, and customization.
