Abstracts

OTT advertising services refer to digital advertising delivered through over-the-top (OTT) platforms. These platforms bypass traditional cable or satellite TV distribution, offering a more targeted and personalized advertising experience. OTT ads can take various forms, including pre-roll, mid-roll, and post-roll video ads, as well as interactive ads and sponsored content. The OTT advertising industry is experiencing significant growth, driven by the increasing popularity of streaming services and the shift in consumer viewing habits towards digital platforms. As more people cut the cord and opt for OTT services, advertisers are following suit to reach their target audience. One of the major trends in OTT advertising is the rise of programmatic advertising, which allows advertisers to automate the buying and selling of ad inventory. This enables more precise targeting and real-time bidding, making OTT advertising more efficient and effective. Another trend is the increasing focus on data-driven advertising. By analyzing viewer data, advertisers can gain valuable insights into consumer behavior and preferences, allowing them to tailor their ad campaigns accordingly. This data-driven approach helps to improve the relevance and effectiveness of OTT ads. Additionally, the emergence of addressable TV advertising is revolutionizing the industry. Addressable TV allows advertisers to target specific households with personalized ads, based on factors such as demographics, interests, and viewing history. This level of targeting precision can significantly boost the ROI of OTT advertising campaigns. Overall, the OTT advertising industry is poised for continued growth, driven by technological advancements, changing consumer behavior, and the increasing sophistication of advertising tools and techniques. As the industry evolves, advertisers will have more opportunities to reach their target audience with engaging and impactful OTT ad campaigns.
