Abstracts

An Over-the-top (OTT) platform delivers film and television content directly to viewers over the internet, bypassing traditional distribution methods like cable or satellite television. OTT platforms offer on-demand access to a vast library of content, including movies, TV shows, documentaries, and live streams. Users can access OTT services through various devices, such as smart TVs, smartphones, tablets, and computers, typically via dedicated apps or web browsers. OTT platforms often offer features like personalized recommendations, watchlists, and offline viewing. The term "over-the-top" refers to the delivery of content "over" the existing internet infrastructure, without requiring the involvement of traditional network operators. The global OTT media services market is primarily driven by ease of viewing through different devices and platforms, variety of content, and technological advancements. The expansion of the OTT industry is driven by the availability of various streaming content in different languages and the ease of viewing through various devices and platforms such as smartphones, smart TVs, laptops, etc. are the factors driving the growth of the OTT industry. Significantly influence customer choice from traditional broadcast networks to OTT media services. The demand for OTT media services is expected to grow significantly over the forecast period as consumers' spending power increases and consumers are now more willing to purchase subscriptions to different streaming OTT services in order to take advantage of a wide range of network services Series, movies, live broadcasts, and other media content on everything from TVs to smartphones.

The global Over-the-Top (OTT) Platforms market size was estimated at USD 2172.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 16.40% during the forecast period.
