Abstracts

Overall equipment effectiveness (OEE) is a measure of how well a factory or production line is operating. It is calculated by taking the product of three factors: availability, performance, and quality.* Availability is the percentage of time that a machine is available to produce.* Performance is the percentage of time that a machine is running at its full capacity.* Quality is the percentage of products that are produced without defects.OEE can be used to identify areas where production can be improved. For example, if availability is low, it may be due to machine breakdowns or maintenance issues. If performance is low, it may be due to bottlenecks in the production process. If quality is low, it may be due to poor quality materials or workmanship.The growth of the OEE solution market is being driven by a number of factors, including:The increasing demand for real-time data: Businesses are increasingly demanding real-time data to make better decisions about their production processes. OEE solutions can provide this data by collecting and analyzing data from machines, sensors, and other sources.The need to improve efficiency and productivity: Businesses are always looking for ways to improve efficiency and productivity. OEE solutions can help businesses to do this by identifying and troubleshooting production problems, optimizing production processes, and preventing waste and defects.The need to comply with regulations: Businesses are increasingly required to comply with regulations, such as those related to food safety and environmental protection. OEE solutions can help businesses to comply with these regulations by tracking and recording data related to production processes.The increasing adoption of Industry 4.0: Industry 4.0 is the fourth industrial revolution, which is characterized by the use of advanced technologies, such as artificial intelligence, big data, and the Internet of Things (IoT). OEE solutions are a key enabler of Industry 4.0, as they can collect and analyze data from machines and sensors to improve the efficiency and productivity of production processes.
