Report Overview:

A patent annuity is a fee that a patent owner must pay to renew a granted patent. Otherwise it will lapse and as the patent owner will lose the previous rights on the regular expiry date. Over the past decade, the trend for maintaining patents has shifted to the use of patent annuity service providers. This includes law firms removing themselves from patent annuity management and referring clients to professional service providers.

Choosing a patent annuity specialist instead of paying directly or using an attorney can bring considerable benefits, such as:

Cost-effectiveness and savings through centralized management

External data monitoring and inspection

Timely renewal reminder

Understand and track state law updates

Ability to consolidate services (e.g. trademarks, patents, foreign applications, etc.) under one provider
