Abstracts

Pelvic Health Solution is a comprehensive approach or measure to improve and maintain pelvic floor health, mainly targeting issues related to pelvic floor dysfunction (PFD). The pelvic floor is a group of muscles and connective tissues at the bottom of the pelvis that support organs such as the bladder, uterus (for women), and rectum, and controls urination, defecation, and sexual function. When the pelvic floor muscles or nerves are damaged, it can lead to a range of health problems, such as urinary incontinence, pelvic organ prolapse, difficulty defecating, sexual dysfunction, etc. There has been a growing awareness of pelvic health issues, including pelvic floor disorders and urinary incontinence, among both healthcare providers and the general population. This increased awareness has driven demand for pelvic health solutions. Advances in medical technology have led to the development of innovative pelvic health solutions, including wearable devices, biofeedback systems, and minimally invasive surgical techniques. There is a trend toward the development of wearable pelvic health devices that allow individuals to monitor and manage their pelvic health from the comfort of their homes. These devices often incorporate telehealth features for remote consultations with healthcare providers. Minimally invasive surgical techniques for the treatment of pelvic floor disorders, such as laparoscopic and robotic-assisted surgeries, have gained popularity due to reduced recovery times and improved patient outcomes.

The global Pelvic Health Solution market size was estimated at USD 1394.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 8.90% during the forecast period.
