Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Personalized Customized Dog Food competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. Personalized customized dog food is a tailor-made nutrition plan based on the dog's breed, age, weight, activity level and health status (such as allergies, obesity, joint problems, etc.). It uses fresh meat, organic fruits and vegetables, and functional nutrients (such as probiotics, fish oil, glucosamine, etc.) in a scientific ratio, and optimizes the formula through AI algorithms or veterinary advice to ensure that the unique needs of each dog are accurately met. Products usually use cold pressing or low-temperature baking to retain nutrients, reject artificial additives and allergenic grains, and provide subscription-based fresh food delivery or dry food customization services, taking into account convenience and health, becoming an emerging choice for mid- to high-end pet owners, especially for pets who are sensitive to commercial food or have special health management.

The global Personalized Customized Dog Food market size was estimated at USD 12950.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 7.20% during the forecast period.
