Abstracts

PET carrier tape is a kind of packaging material made of polyethylene terephthalate (PET) for encapsulating, transporting, and storing small electronic components such as integrated circuits, transistors, and resistors. It has a certain hardness and flexibility. One side of the tape is provided with a series of regularly arranged small grooves or pockets, each of which is designed to hold a single electronic component. The grooves are connected by a continuous tape body, and there are perforations on both sides of the entire tape to facilitate positioning and processing by automated equipment. PET carrier tape is mainly used in the electronic component mounting industry and is suitable for active components with a thickness of more than 1 millimeter. It has excellent mechanical properties, oil resistance, acid and alkali resistance, high and low - temperature resistance, low gas and water vapor permeability, high transparency, and can block ultraviolet rays. In addition, it is non - toxic, odorless, and has good health and safety, which can be directly used for food packaging.

The global PET Carrier Tape market size was estimated at USD 278.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 7.80% during the forecast period.
