Abstracts

The market for pet teeth cleaning services encompasses professional veterinary and specialized dental care procedures aimed at maintaining oral health in companion animals, primarily dogs and cats, through methods including ultrasonic scaling, polishing, and periodontal treatments performed under anesthesia to ensure thorough cleaning and patient safety. This service addresses growing awareness among pet owners regarding the link between oral hygiene and overall pet wellness, driven by increased pet humanization and willingness to invest in preventive healthcare. Demand is further supported by veterinary recommendations, rising pet insurance adoption covering dental procedures, and the proliferation of standalone pet dental clinics alongside traditional veterinary practices offering advanced dental care. Market growth is also influenced by demographic trends such as higher disposable income in urban households, an aging pet population requiring more dental attention, and greater emphasis on specialized pet services within the broader pet care industry.

The global Pet Teeth Cleaning Service market size was estimated at USD 1240.5 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 7.85% during the forecast period.
